NJ Children's Author releases New Book Based on Blind Pony's Rescue Equestrian News Release

NORTHWEST NJ (October 18, 2010) - This November, New Jersey-based children's author Diana Tuorto will release a new book, Spirit of the Saluda River. As with her earlier novels, the story is told from a horse's point of view. This time, however, the book is written for a younger audience (ages 6-8+) and is also based on a real pony's life.

Spirit of the Saluda River is based on the true story of a blind 20+ year-old Shetland pony who was abandoned and stranded on an island in South Carolina's Saluda River. Despite a difficult past and obstacles in his recovery, Spirit goes on to become an inspiration, particularly to deaf and blind children.

The real Spirit was rehabilitated by Palmetto Equine Awareness & Rescue League (P.E.A.R.L.) in South Carolina. A portion of the book's proceeds also benefit this rescue.

Spirit of the Saluda River includes illustrations by Emmi Gordon, a 13 year-old artist from Ohio. "I met Emmi through Facebook," Tuorto said. "Her family runs Frog Pond Farm, a draft horse rescue in Ohio. Her illustrations are amazing and incredibly detailed."

In addition, Tuorto is currently offering a holiday sale on her book sets. A set of her three middle-grade (ages 8-14+) novels (My Desert Sun, Janie's New Legs, and Luck of the Draw) is available for $25 and copies of Spirit of the Saluda River can be added on for an additional $10 paperback or $15 hardcover.

Tuorto also offers free shipping within the US and personalized autographs with every order she takes directly.

Tuorto's book sets are on sale until December 15, 2010, but only while supplies last. Readers can visit http://www.cayusecanyon.com/books_holiday.aspx to learn more about the books or purchase sets using a credit card or PayPal.
